THE HONORABLE COLGATE W. DARDEN, JR.
President of the University of Virginia

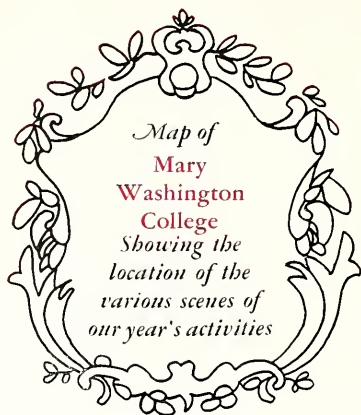

WHOSE SERVICES to his native state as Member of the General Assembly, as Congressman, and as Governor have been generous and distinguished;

WHOSE long-standing interest in education was instrumental in bringing about the affiliation of this College with the University of Virginia;

WHOSE broad background and whose vision of the opportunities and obligations of higher education promise even greater contributions by the University to the Commonwealth; and WHOSE high purpose, sincerity, and warm personality have won the admiration and loyalty of us all.

A P R E F A C E

IN THE BATTLEFIELD OF 1948 we have attempted to compile a book which departs slightly from the precedent of former years. Our emphasis has been mainly upon the interests and activities of the students themselves, and through this we hope we have presented a comprehensive picture of life at Mary Washington College.

Group pictures of the faculty, a new Beauty Section and an enlarged section devoted to informal Student Life have helped us to accomplish our main goal. The latter section, with its behind-the-scene shots of student activities, is a vivid reminder of big and small events in the year that has passed.

We sincerely hope that in THE BATTLEFIELD OF 1948 we have given the student a full and satisfying record of her days at Mary Washington.

ADMINISTRATION

The administrative body of a college directs the machinery of American education. This division of Mary Washington College, though centered in the offices lining the corridors of George Washington, extends its influence over the whole of the campus and even to the various sections of the states from which its students come.

Behind the staff itself, the responsibility of administration rests with the rarely-seen Board of Visitors. Yet the policy on such college matters as curriculum, buildings, faculty and staff generally is left in the hands of the President. The Dean acts, above all else, as the academic arbiter of the school, working in conjunction with heads of the various departments.

Prospective students are considered by the Director of Admissions, who examines their qualifications for meeting the requirements of the college. The Registrar not only is responsible for the keeping of all records, but also provides information about schedules and academic standing. The Treasurer handles all college financial matters and heads the student bank.

The general morale of the entire student body is dependent upon the Dean of Women, who supervises the social life of the campus and schedules the calendar of events. The Office of Student Personnel is a general clearing house for student problems and adjustments. Further, the office acts as a vocational guide for Seniors, and arranges interviews with prospective employers. Finally, the Office of Public Relations publicizes the activities and achievements of the college.

HOSTESSES

And who may these fine ladies be? Such a question can arise only in the mind of one not familiar with Mary Washington, for upon turning this page, all students will immediately recognize the faces of our dormitory director and hostesses. Such an integral part of our college life can hardly be found on campus.

Many students never realize the difficulties and responsibilities of a house mother, simply because, in a quiet, capable fashion, each carries out her duties to perfection. She is on call day and night to administer to the needs of students in case of sickness or emergency. Countless times in every day does she attend to matters which make dormitory life smoother for everyone. We shall always remember the indispensability of our hostesses—the vital part they played in our days at Mary Washington.

SENIOR CLASS HISTORY

"In the mountains of truth, you never climb in vain. Either you already reach a higher point today or you exercise your strength in order to climb higher tomorrow."

—NIETZSCHE

As the Class of '48 sees its college years end, it is not without regret that it prepares to be welcomed (as the President of Harvard says to the Senior class every graduation day) into the company of "educated" gentlewomen.

The ascent to this climax of our college years has been arduous and long, but filled with pleasures and many rich experiences. To mention them all would be impossible; to list a few is to subordinate perhaps the most important of all. The close association with our professors and the accumulation of knowledge we have gained from them; the contacts with our friends and fellow classmates; the school spirit of Devil-Goat Days, basketball games, song contests, and Loyalty Nights; the pride we feel when we sing our alma mater—these have made the past four years the most memorable of our life. Remembering is the privilege of a Senior, and as we look at the familiar walks, the classrooms, and the dormitories where not so long ago we lived as underclassmen, we recall with something of nostalgia the deep-rooted memories of our years.

Under the leadership and guidance of Betty Ann Smith, class president, and Miss Turman, sponsor, we organized our Freshman class. Sophomore year Sarah Armstrong was president and Dr. Pyle, sponsor. Lois Saunier and Dr. Whidden, class president and sponsor, respectively, served the Junior class and were re-elected our Senior year.

Our benefits—always one of the most representative incidents of our college year—have had the enthusiastic support of every class member. "Peeping Backwards," the initial effort toward the '48's college shows, gave M. W. C. a song whose catchy tune and lyrics made it popular with all classes. "Fantastic Takeoff," Sophomore year, added new quips and songs to the repertoire of the college. This was followed by the traditional beauty contest, "The Caliph's Quest." The Senior benefit, "State of Reunion," for which the prize comics of the Class of '48 had long been waiting, was a howl of revived "Joe Millers" and sparkling ad-libbing.

From the olive-drab war years to the brighter years of peace, we have come to that day which marks the beginning of a new phase of our life. The scroll of parchment in our hand is our ticket to tomorrow—the ensignia of four years of endeavor and many more of planning. Not the parchment itself but what it represents is our standard. It is the reward for our climb up the mountain of truth; therefore, in truth, we have not climbed in vain.

And so we close our exciting, never monotonous story. An adventure tale, a romance, a melodrama—all has been unfolded in this novel. There is a sequel, too, perhaps even more magnificent, which still remains to be written.

JUNIOR CLASS HISTORY

As Juniors we have behind us three years with unforgettable memories. It seems only yesterday that we entered the gates of Mary Washington College as Freshmen. Our fears of homesickness vanished during those first busy days. Everyone had a smile and a friendly "Hello" for us, and with a crowded schedule of activities, we soon felt right at home. Our Big Sisters made things easier for us and later we remembered them with gratitude. It was with great anticipation that we looked forward to the Kid Party, Devil-Goat Day, and Peanut Week. Unfortunately, our benefit could not be presented due to wartime conditions.

The following year, however, under the able leadership of our class officers and our sponsor, Dr. Martin, we produced our first benefit, "The Big Wig," which was a great success. It was this year that the Class of '49 adopted a European orphan and, with the wholehearted cooperation of all, succeeded in sending her gifts throughout the year.

Wearing our maroon and white beanies and full of Mary Washington school spirit, we presented our Sophomore skit during Yram Week. The Loyalty Night service ending that week was an impressive one in which each of us felt proud to participate.

In 1947, the first year that Westmoreland, Marye, and Brent were open to Juniors, we moved into these dormitories. Yram Week rolled around again, and our program featured "The Enlightened Eleven," portraying Mary Washington College of the future. Thanksgiving came and went, and the excitement of Christmas was upon us. This year again we collected money for gifts to be sent to our little orphan friend.

The latter half of our Junior year was a busy one. Exams, descending upon us like a plague, took on a new significance, for we were now fighting for the cherished classification of Seniors. We contributed two lovely and original songs to the 1948 Song Contest. We battled with our sister class, the Freshmen, to out-Devil the Goats. And then came our benefit, the traditional Beauty Contest.

The Junior Ring Dance was the grand event of our past year, for it was then that we received the ring which is a token of three happy years filled with poignant memories. But this ring is not only a symbol of achievement, it is also a promise of the year to come, when it will mean the fulfillment of our goal.

SOPHOMORE CLASS HISTORY

Happy to be back, happier still to be united, we the Sophomores returned to Mary Washington looking forward eagerly to another bigger and better year. No more treks from off-campus homes and Cornell to face, no more bewilderment and homesickness—only the expectation of the happy year ahead.

We became part of the college; we helped the Freshmen, proudly displayed Little Sisters, greeted old friends, made new ones, introduced as a class during Yram Week, and gloried in living in Virginia Hall and Betty Lewis.

We walked familiar paths to Monroe, Chandler, G.W. and the Library, had cokes in the C Shoppe, became acquainted with new professors, and got used to the idea of being on the lowest rung of the upperclassmen's ladder.

In no time mid-terms were upon us and lights flooded the windows until midnight. Thanksgiving came and then it was only nineteen days 'till Christmas. We counted, then re-counted; we blacked out days on the calendar and worried over the right gift for him. Amid the confusion Peanut Week was launched. The new exam schedule was posted and everyone was planning when she could leave.

Finally the day — December 19 — arrived. Christmas was everywhere. The trimmed tree in the circle reminded us of a Currier & Ives print. With a flurry of best wishes for Christmas we left Mary Washington to see the year out with our families.

1948! A new year and new resolutions. We returned full of holiday memories which we reluctantly put aside for exams.

The new semester brought a new set of cuts, invitations to dances, wonderful lyceum programs, special week-end dates, Devil-Goat Day, and snow that turned Mary Washington into a winter wonderland.

Spring holidays left us refreshed and ready to put the finishing touches on our benefit, which was presented April 10. This accomplished, we settled down to end a perfect year.

Proud to be a part of Mary Washington, we, the Class of '50, eagerly look ahead.

FRESHMAN CLASS HISTORY

After a whirlwind year of fun and hard work, laughter and tears, disappointments and inspirations, we pause a moment to look back over this Freshman year, perhaps in the end the most memorable of them all.

Although we had been forewarned of the new experiences which college life would bring, the strangeness of the first few days seemed to envelop and stifle us. Night brought the usual anguished sobs of homesickness and complaints about rules, food, and assignments. However, panic was soon replaced by a deep feeling of awe for the beauty which seemed to glow from each red-gold leaf, each stately column, and each shaded path. Gradually, our breathlessness disappeared and we realized that we were beginning a new life. We were a part of this glorious college.

Each of us owes a debt of gratitude to her "big sister," who was ever ready to help bewildered Freshmen. Will we ever forget the howling success of the Kid Party? All dolled up in our perkier pinafores and clutching our favorite Raggedy Anns, we were gayly escorted to the party by Big Sis. The absurd figures of our classmates still provoke a reminiscent smile. At our own Freshman Reception we were formally introduced to the faculty. Later, at the Student Government Reception, we met a number of upperclassmen and danced with our favorite professors.

Some of our most vivid memories are of Yram Week, during which we were obliged to wear caps displaying our class colors, red and white. The climax of this week was Loyalty Night, with its never-to-be-forgotten scene of hundreds of girls in a great circle of candlelight, revealing to us more clearly than words the heritage which was ours.

To all of us, our Y groups have meant fun and good times. We remember that wild night at the cabin when morning found us huddled in the corners, half frozen and hungry.

In November our class was officially organized, with Sarah Kay Jordan as president, and we were at last privileged to vote.

The Doll Show just before Christmas found each group dashing madly about, sewing on a pigtail, stuffing an arm, or putting the finishing touches to a costume.

Our first formal dance in the Hall of Mirrors, and our first big week end away from school provided "after lights" chatter for many nights.

With delight we recall our first Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays and the excitement of meeting parents and friends at the station.

Back to a long spring of hard work, we reached the peak of our labor with the Freshman Benefit, where we discovered the plentiful talent in our class.

Fond memories, all of them! With the end of the year came the realization of the place Mary Washington had taken in our hearts. They had said, "It grows on you," and so it did. Proudly, gratefully, and a bit sadly we close this page of our memory book, but before us looms a vision of clean white pages which the years to come will fill.

ORGANIZATIONS AND ACTIVITIES

ALPHA PHI SIGMA

"let knowledge grow from more to more"

Seated: Watson, Ross. Standing: Grigg, Dr. Dodd, McClarin, Cumming

A Senior, rightfully proud, stood before the students in George Washington auditorium holding in her hand a red carnation, Alpha Phi Sigma's symbol of highest scholastic achievement.

In May, just a few weeks before graduation, a Scholastic Recognition Day had been set aside at Mary Washington College. Red, white and pink carnations were presented to Seniors with high academic records. A red flower went to those girls who had maintained an "A" average throughout their college career, a pink one to those who had made the Dean's List every semester for four years, and a white to those who had made the Dean's List for two consecutive semesters.

Gamma Chapter of the national fraternity, Alpha Phi Sigma, bids into its membership

honor students of the college who may advance through the degrees of novice, apprentice, and master membership. At the end of each semester an impressive initiation ritual is held for new members and for those advancing toward their master membership.

Alpha Phi Sigma's monthly meetings have offered a variety of excellent programs including some by visiting celebrities. There was an illustrated lecture on early Cretan civilization, a discussion on modern art, and a number of book reviews.

Because members of Alpha Phi Sigma realize the importance of cultivating a well-rounded personality, their activities have been social as well as intellectual. During the year there were musicals followed by teas and receptions in the Dome Room. And there was a wonderful picnic (complete with hot dogs, cokes, and chocolate eclairs) at the home of Dr. Eileen Dodd, Sponsor of Alpha Phi Sigma.

Initiation of new members

PI SIGMA KAPPA

Pi Sigma Kappa, a public speaking organization, is founded on the belief that speaking ability is conducive to a well-rounded personality. The aim of the society is the cultivation of good speech which is encouraged by contests, debates, and radio work. Each member is thus offered an opportunity to improve her speech and to aid others in the art of correct speech habits, interesting content, and good pronunciation.

The organization presented a convocation program in the late fall in which its members gave dramatic readings and selections from the works of well-known poets. During the year, the organization holds monthly business and social meetings at which its members, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Mildred Sollenberger, glean a practical knowledge from which they profit when called upon to appear in public.

The year was climaxed in the spring when various campus organizations were represented in the annual intracollegiate speech contest sponsored by Pi Sigma Kappa.

Debating at the Dixie Warm-up Tournament

When the Forensic Club held its third successful Grand National Tournament in March of this year on the Mary Washington campus, over two hundred students from various colleges and universities all over the United States came to compete for top honors. The members of the Mary Washington Club, who acted as hostesses, dealt expertly with the intricate problems of running such a large tournament.

Other activities sponsored by the Forensic Club throughout the year included the Dixie Novice Tournament, which was held on the Mary Washington campus in December, and the Grant National Student Assembly at Natural Bridge, Virginia, in April. Mary Washington debate teams also visited a great number of other colleges to participate in their tournaments.

It is through these varied activities that the Forensic Club hopes to train the young women of Mary Washington to be effective community leaders and to acquire a lasting interest in debate and parliamentary procedure.

SIGMA TAU DELTA

Their lives are open books

For future reference

The year is 1958, and you're reading the latest book, when suddenly the author's name strikes a familiar note. You recall that back in your college days, she was a member of Sigma Tau Delta—one of those girls who adored term papers, joyfully memorized 600 lines of poetry and never, never wrote letters in English class.

Throughout the year the members attended in a body several plays in Richmond and Washington.

By contributing to The Rectangle, Sigma Tau Delta's national magazine, and by discussion of world masterpieces, the members are stimulated to creative writing and to attaining a greater knowledge of great works of literature.

Mayo, Clark, Rutman, Grigg, Sheaks, Horton, Reifsnyder, Selvage, Dr. Shankle, Murray, Timberlake, Thomas, Lynch, Goode, Howard, Maguire, Dulany, Ross

Through the study of classical literature, Athenaeum strives to recapture the culture characteristic of the ancients. Its purpose is to foster an active interest in the humanities which form the basis of the western world's art and literature. Through a better understanding of the past, the structure of the world today can be more readily interpreted. Such knowledge of the classics is the sieve through which modern values may be wisely sifted.

A different aspect of Greek and Roman life or literature is studied each year. This year Athenaeum has focused its interest on the theatre, developing its theme through reports by members of the club. As the climax of this study, Athenaeum presented a Roman comedy, "Miles Gloriosus" or "The Swelled Headed Soldier and the Two-Faced Girl."

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB

Wanted: One pair of kid gloves

"The United Nations Organization" was the subject of study and discussion for the International Relations Club this year. Included in the program were discussions with groups of students from other colleges, speakers on the United Nations and World Government, and a trip to Lake Success to see the U.N. in action. The club sponsored speakers for convocation programs, and also the Student Federalist group. During the year members attended a conference in Williamsburg on World Government, the regional Conference of International Relations Clubs at Raleigh, N.C., and the annual meeting of the American Academy of Political and Social Sciences in Philadelphia.

In working toward a broader knowledge of world affairs, the club hopes to discover the most effective ways of helping to bring about an enduring world peace.

MIKE CLUB

The sounds are waving, we're on the air

For three hours each day station WMWC is "on the air." Broadcasting from George Washington Hall, the station presents programs written, directed, and produced by the students. These programs have featured recordings of classical and popular music, interviews with students and faculty, dramatic skits, and other student talent.

The Mike Club, organized to assist in the managing of station WMWC, is composed of students from the radio broadcasting classes and others who are interested in radio. Our broadcasting activities are designed not only for the enjoyment of the student body but also to give practical experience in the art of broadcasting. Through membership in the Intercollegiate Broadcasting System we have gained much assistance in program planning and in coping with some of the technicalities of radio.

CHI BETA PHI

We're merry little Einsteins—in a relative way

The challenge that science is a man's field has not discouraged the scientific-minded of Mary Washington; they know that women have made and will continue to make great discoveries leading to world progress.

Chi Beta Phi, a national honorary scientific fraternity for undergraduates, is represented at Mary Washington by a relatively new chapter, Kappa Sigma, which was chartered in 1945. Students maintaining a high scholastic average and showing a deep interest in science are elected to its membership.

In order to stimulate and advance scientific interest and accomplishments, members keep abreast of current scientific investigation, attend lectures by prominent scientists, and participate in scientific discussions. As an added stimulus to scientific inquiry, the fraternity annually awards a key charm to the outstanding member of each chapter.

Chi Beta Phi, having gained a foothold on the campus, is now endeavoring to initiate a scientific project which will benefit the entire student body of Mary Washington.

THE MATTHEW FONTAINE

MAURY SCIENCE CLUB Jeanie with the light brown chromosomes

Since the study of specific sciences is stressed in the classroom, we have found it beneficial in the Matthew Fontaine Maury Science Club to emphasize the inter-relationship and correlation of all sciences, in order that our club may help to increase the knowledge and appreciation of science as a field of thought. We have done this mainly through group discussion in our monthly meeting, but we often have been fortunate enough to hear lectures by learned scientists. We also have taken club-sponsored trips to places of scientific importance and interest, among them the Smithsonian Institution in Washington.

The primary purpose of the Matthew Fontaine Maury Science Club is to bring together all students majoring in science. Formerly we offered membership only to students of Biology, Chemistry, and Physics, but now membership has been extended to include majors in the fields of Mathematics and Psychology.

Besides our regular meetings during the year the activities of the club included a party at the Cabin for the initiation of new members and a final banquet in the spring.

MARY WASHINGTON PLAYERS

Prompter she was, but late for the show

Cassriel, Mr. Warfield

The blare of the orchestra dies, the hum of many voices fades to an expectant hush as the velvet curtains slowly part, revealing Mary Washington's budding Bankheads and Hepburns in the current production of The Players.

Starting the season was "The Late Mr. Early," which was followed by two successful joint productions of The Players and Alpha Psi Omega. Every student interested in drama, be it whispering cues, planning costumes, building sets, or working with the various technical crews, may participate in the productions of The Players.

During the year there were several parties and picnics honoring new master members (those old, old stagehands with experience on two major productions).

Achenbach, Fletcher, Hardy, Nussey

ALPHA PSI OMEGA

Quick! The plasma! They've greasepaint in their blood!

Back in December the early risers who braved the cold morning winds walked into breakfast to find blue and gold clad figures perched on chairs, solemnly quoting Shakespeare. They were Alpha Psi Omega's new pledges, who are elected after each major production. The members are chosen on the basis of outstanding work in production, play-writing, directing, acting, business managing, and technical work.

One of the major activities of the year was the production of Sidney Howard's stirring drama, "The Silver Cord," under the direction of Mr. J. W. Warfield. A complimentary performance of this play was presented for the colored people of Fredericksburg.

MU PHI EPSILON

Music hath charms

Reception in honor of national Vice-President

Music so lends charm and beauty to our day that we are often happier for one hour of listening. We are grateful for the concerts, recitals, and other programs of lasting enjoyment which Mu Phi Epsilon has contributed this year.

The Phi Psi Chapter of Mu Phi Epsilon, a national music sorority, was chartered at Mary Washington College in 1945, and its members have shown a great deal of enthusiasm. They pour over the Triangle, the monthly magazine, for latest activities of clubs throughout the nation, and constantly endeavor to provide more interesting programs for their meetings, and for public entertainments.

The achievements and progress of this chapter have been a source of great pride to the members of the sorority, whose purpose is to inspire musicianship, friendship and scholarship, and to further the development of musical talent.

CAP AND GOWN

"... To promote and develop scholarship, leadership, personality, and service to the college ... to foster such activities as will be beneficial to the life of the college. ..." Behind this formal phrase from an organization's constitution stand the Seniors, chosen in their Junior year to be members of Cap and Gown on the basis of that scholarship, leadership, personality, and service to the school which their group seeks to encourage.

The principal Cap and Gown service is the annual publication of a student-faculty directory. For the second successive year a silver cup was awarded to the outstanding Sophomore who had shown those qualities for which Cap and Gown members are chosen. Cap and Gown members are on call to guide visitors through the intricacies of the campus and to perform numerous small but needed services in the realms of college activity.

CONCERT DANCE

One of the most stirring concerts presented on George Washington stage this year was the annual convocation program of the Concert Dance Club. Executed solely in the medium of modern dance, it was a triumph of that rhythmic coordination, beauty of form, and intense emotion which makes modern dance the most expressive of all dance forms. This form captures the essential motion and rhythm necessary for the interpretation and conveyance of story and emotion.

The Concert Dance Club sponsors a Junior Dance group for the training of those students who wish to become members of the advanced organization. The two groups worked together in the production of a beautiful May Day pageant. The members, in presenting their own works, showed varied interests and choreographic abilities. In the spring, the group participated in the Art's Forum at the Women's College of the University of North Carolina with students from colleges of three other states.

DANCE ORCHESTRA

Watch it! Don't trip over the light fantastic

The dance floor is covered with swirling skirts and dancing feet; the sweet music of a saxophone, interrupted now and then by the muted tones of a trumpet or trombone, interprets a popular melody. Rustling taffeta gaily waltzes as the curtains open on the thirteen musicians of the Mary Washington College Orchestra. The hours hurry on; the dancers listen as the orchestra plays the closing number of the evening; a murmur of appreciation rises from the floor. Mr. Faulkner places his baton on the stand before him: the college orchestra has completed another evening of music for those who love to dance.

Each member takes pride in contributing her particular musical talent toward making the orchestra a successful organization. The saxophone section consists of four able musicians: Rosemary Miller and Jean Hawkins play alto saxophones, Jane McCullough and Bobby Hove, tenor. The brass section boasts June Shirley Brandon, "Bill" Andrews, and Betty Hove playing trumpets; Shirley Cole and Ann McCaskill are responsible for the soft tones of the trombones. Frances Chesson very competently supplies the rhythm on her trap-set. The pianist, who so capably lends the accompaniment to the orchestra, is Betty Jean Lyle. Beating out a steady background rhythm is Betty Gavett on the bass. And finally we must mention the specialty numbers of Charlotte Delano, vocalist, which have always been welcomed by the audience.

SYMPHONETTE

Playing Wagner stormily, Chopin dreamily, but Handel with care

Fine musicians and unforgettable renditions of great compositions have made the Mary Washington College Symphonette an organization of which the entire college is proud.

This year the Symphonette played overtures and entr'actes for the three major dramatic productions presented by the Mary Washington Players and Alpha Psi Omega. Each year, rain or shine, this orchestra plays for the May Court's processional and recessional and provides the music for the Concert Dance group's May Day Ballet in honor of the May Queen and her court.

The Symphonette's agenda this year was additionally distinguished by a program of Spanish music with several vocal numbers and Spanish dances adding to the atmosphere of gaiety.

To the able direction and musicianship of our conductor, Mr. Ronald Faulkner, the orchestra owes a lasting debt. Through him each member has reached a greater understanding of his individual musical capacities.

Blown by a gust of autumn wind, a solitary individual, looking very much like a blue and white quilt piece, scurries up the walk toward George Washington Hall and takes her place in the colorful patch quilt which is the Mary Washington College Band. This member hurrying into place with her instrument tucked under her arm already feels the rush of excitement which the band will create when it blares into view at its destination—the stadium of a neighboring university or perhaps the concert hall of a nearby school.

This year the band and its high-stepping majorettes thrilled spectators at numerous gridiron contests in the surrounding area. The girls piled into a bus and rode up to Washington to perform at one of the first games of the season, the Fordham-Georgetown battle. At the V.M.I.-University of Richmond game, they were guests of the winning Richmond team and were royally entertained with a barbecue. The band seemed to have brought luck wherever they went, for their hosts triumphed also at the University of Virginia-Richmond game. The band played at several of the games of Fredericksburg's own James Monroe High School and took a prominent part in many campus events. They were on hand for the convention of the State Cooperative Association of Virginia High Schools, they led the parade on Devil-Goat Day, and they played for the March of Dimes drive.

Football season, and this is the “half” of it

Although the band had some very exciting trips and enjoyed all the activities of the year, it achieved its success only through diligent practice. Every Tuesday and Thursday afternoon found band members at work perfecting the numbers for their next performance. Often we saw them practicing their marching—the whole, a unit in cadence with drums; each member an individual thrilling to martial beat.

At each succeeding performance the band has gained a heightened popularity and prominence. Much credit is due Mr. Ronald Faulkner, director, whose ingenuity and originality have helped to produce the success which the band has attained.

GLEE CLUB

"Waring" the tone at a jaunty angle

The Glee Club has been responsible for many hours of entertainment on the hill this year, providing enjoyment both for the music-loving members themselves, and for the student body of Mary Washington, through solo and small ensemble work, and performances by the entire club. It is a highly selective group and is thereby enabled to present the best vocal talent of the student body.

One of the most outstanding and best attended concerts of the year was the annual Christmas carol program, which consisted of carols of different countries, as well as well-known Christmas songs. How soon the signs of Christmas spirit were in evidence when the first notes of a lovely old carol struck the air! This program drew a large and appreciative audience, including students, local residents, and out-of-town visitors.

With the coming of spring, the Glee Club presented a formal concert, consisting of varied selections. The club also sponsored the several programs and concerts which were brought to Mary Washington by choral groups from other schools and colleges in Virginia. The Glee Club did not limit its services to the campus alone, however. The members were willing to give musical programs in response to requests from local and state organizations, churches, and radio programs.

The Glee Club, under the able direction of Miss Marion Chauncey, met for two hours each Tuesday evening during the year. It consisted of sixty-five members who were chosen for their singing ability, personality, dependability, and musical interest. During the past year it has been the aim of the Glee Club to present programs and concerts which would be cultural, interesting, and entertaining for all those concerned.

When the Christmas holidays approached, girls filled with the Christmas spirit sang carols, and the Choir added the final holiday touch with its Christmas Concert.

Later in the year the members presented an operetta, the first to be given in a number of years.

The Choir has felt honored to present several outstanding guests during the year, among them Dr. Luther A. Richman, State Supervisor of Music in Virginia; Ross Rosazza, baritone; and Nell Clarke, pianist. The University of Virginia Glee Club presented a musical program and the Virginia Military Institute Glee Club also visited the campus for a concert, which was followed by a dance in their honor.

Under the guidance of Miss Eva Taylor Eppes, the Choir studies both sacred and secular music, and offers students the opportunity to sing the finest types of music in choral ensemble.

ART CLUB

We see brush to brush

Irving Stone wrote, "Does the artist paint because he's crazy, or is he crazy because he paints?" Certainly the artist is possessed of a peculiar genius, for no normal man would paint a newspaper with three eyes or a mustached madonna.

The Art Club is composed of those who strive for a greater appreciation of the artist's genius. Books, lectures, and visits to museums have furthered this aim, and sketching trips and frequent exhibitions have encouraged the development of talent.

And for those who cling to the mad artist theory, the club attempts to determine just when the artist attains this state—is it when he first holds a shapeless wax crayon in his hand, or later when he registers at an art institute, or finally when he sells his first painting, wherein his soul lies open to the public?

SIGMA TAU CHI

Let's get down to business

There will always be the "beautiful but dumb" who have a typing speed of twenty words a minute and high hopes of marrying the boss's son. But the commercial majors at Mary Washington College are relying upon their efficiency to make a place for themselves in the business world.

Smaller this year, but more active, Sigma Tau Chi has become the center of interest and activity for those students interested and trained in the commercial field.

The members are alert to national, political, and business affairs. They have had several educational trips this year, among them a visit to Washington for the opening session of Congress and an observation of Supreme Court proceedings. The outstanding campus event of the year was the annual formal banquet at the Stratford. This occasion featured speeches on subjects pertinent to the activities of the club.

In striving toward the triple goals of personality, knowledge, and skill, the members hope to attain their aim of becoming efficient executives.

Sigma Tau Chi is sponsored by Dr. J. H. Dodd, who has guided and inspired the chapter since it was established in 1940.

ALPHA TAU PI

The members of Alpha Tau Pi, a national professional society for prospective elementary teachers, are chosen from the Junior and Senior classes. These prospective teachers in elementary education are sent from Mary Washington College to schools in various sections of Virginia in order to benefit from the actual experience of teaching. This unique method of apprentice teaching, used by only one other college in the country, has been found invaluable in preparing the future teacher to meet everyday classroom situations. During this period of apprentice teaching, the club members make frequent visits to the campus to discuss their progress in the field.

HOME ECONOMICS

Functioning as an important behind the scenes agency for most of the social functions on the hill, the Home Economics Club provides the artfully prepared and served refreshments, beautifully set tables, and efficient service that we have enjoyed throughout the year.

In the spring the club sponsored its annual fashion show to help students familiarize themselves with the new trend in fashions, and to demonstrate the most becoming way in which to wear them. Many of the costumes modeled were designed and made by the girls.

Through meetings with other clubs in the state and with the American Dietetics Association and the American Home Economics Association, the members evaluate the latest developments in the field of home economics. Speakers, prominent in their respective fields, are brought to the club to discuss such subjects as interior decoration, child care, and hotel and hospital dietetics.

"Bubble, bubble, toil and trouble"

Members of the Mary Washington College Home Economics Club will never know the humiliation of "bride's biscuits"; in their versatility they will manage a woman's club dinner, redecorate a home, plan a well balanced menu based on scientific knowledge of foods, or care for children, all with equal ease.

ALUMNAE DAUGHTERS

From one girl to another

Through the years girls have come to the hill, lived here for a relatively brief span of time, and then gone their ways, taking with them a bit of the college—a heritage of charm, courtesy, love, honor, and courage. But those values and ideals which the college has given in past years are handed down from student to student, from mother to daughter, and come back to the campus in a never-ending cycle. Hence, the alumnae daughters are a source of enrichment, and on their coming to the hill bring with them an inherent sense of tradition.

Bound together by a common interest, they are united in a striving to uphold the traditions of their mothers, and during the past year have undertaken various activities in order to do so. The highlights of the year included entertaining the local alumnae chapter, sending Christmas cards to the alumnae mothers, selling Mary Washington Christmas cards and stationery, assisting with the activities of Homecoming Weekend, sponsoring a convocation program, welcoming alumnae back to the campus, and giving the annual banquet in the spring.

EPAULET

The Epaulet Staff, many years ago, chose as its motto the line, "Not words, but thoughts and the manner of expressing them, make literature." With this in mind, each succeeding staff has worked to give students a chance for self-expression and to awake in each a deep consciousness of her creative ability.

Beyond this, there is ample opportunity for getting more practical experience, such as selling, advertising, learning the necessary angles of printing, and making up copy. Each person develops a great sense of responsibility in doing her own job correctly.

*Calm, sure, deliberative,
It gives us writing that's creative*

Those girls who have contributed to or have helped to publish The Epaulet have found great satisfaction in their work this year; they have watched with great pride the expansion and improvement of the magazine. There has been ample opportunity for utilizing new ideas, and the constant challenge of "what to do" and "how to do it."

The Epaulet is published bi-monthly under the sponsorship of Dr. George E. Shankle. The material presented includes several features about campus activities, together with original short stories and poems.

The purpose of the Student Government Organization of Mary Washington College of the University of Virginia is to promote personal responsibility, loyalty, and a high sense of honor in the individual, and to represent and further the best interests of the student body and the college by inculcating the underlying principles of self-government and democracy.

Upon a request granted by the administration last year, one student body meeting is held every month in order that a cross-section opinion of the Student Body can be adequately expressed.

The annual formal reception was held in the fall to officially introduce the members of Student and Joint Council to the Student Body.

We sponsored Loyalty Week at the beginning of the school year in an effort to promote loyalty on the part of every individual student.

Besides the activities sponsored exclusively by student government, the association has jointly affiliated with other organizations on

Y.W.C.A.

To make college that home away from home

The Y.W.C.A. of Mary Washington College shall always remember the service and helpfulness, the gaiety and good times, the stimulating thought and companionship, the fine spiritual life of "Y" members. "Y" is an essential part of our college life from the moment of welcoming by the "girls in white" (when we climbed the hill for the first time, it was all very new and strange; we were in a foreign element—we were at a loss, and some of us were very lonely. There were only strange faces, but then there was a face that wasn't strange because it was smiling, smiling at us. And we were talking with a "Y" girl, and she was showing us the campus and telling us where to go. And suddenly we felt very much at home) to the moment of farewell at the Senior Tea and Devotionals.

We shall remember the days that a "Y" member would knock on our doors in Willard or Cornell and come into the room and be very much at home. And we would be at home,

Martha Warriner, President

Davis, Terry, Dillard, Booker, Armstrong, Powell, Busch, R. Westerman, D'Armond, Dr. Allen, Miss Harrison, Dr. Hilldrup

too, because she was the first friend we had had at college. We saw her on the campus and at the post office, and we were great friends, and so we liked Mary Washington very much.

We shall remember the stimulating thought and companionship—the discussion groups, seminars—all those things that contribute to making our lives more worthwhile.

We shall remember the gaily and good times—teas on Sunday afternoons, the Benefit in December, the Freshman Talent Show—all those little things essential to the rounding out of the social calendar of the year. The memories will remain, a testimony to the fun we've had at M.W.C.

We shall remember the service and helpfulness—welcoming Freshmen, "Big Sisters," Commissioners, "Shells," committees—these serve the students and college in many ways. They add to college life by making possible an opportunity for each student, as an individual, to serve.

We shall remember the spiritual life—chapel programs, Religious Emphasis Week, vespers, sings, Sunrise Services, which have brought us the inspiration for better work and have given meaning to each day.

The activities of the Young Women's Christian Association of Mary Washington College—we shall remember them all.

SENIOR COMMISSION

Ambassadors of good will

Operating as a training group for Y.W.C.A., the members of Senior Commission each sponsored a group of Freshmen. This year they found the Freshmen enthusiastic and eager to get started on their activity projects for the year. Officers were elected and soon after the organization of the groups, the girls began work on their dolls, which were to be sent to needy children for Christmas. There was keen competition among the various groups.

The Senior Commissioners worked with different Y committees, and took an active part in Peanut Week and the Y Benefit.

Although Y.W.C.A. is a service organization, work isn't the only aspect of the year's activities. There were various informal socials for the individual groups, and joint picnics and cabin parties, where, amid the spirit of friendship and cooperativeness, Freshman members of Y soon became acquainted.

The Senior Commissioners have given willingly of their time, advice and aid, and it is through them that the Freshmen have come to understand the purposes, ideals, and functions of one of our most powerful campus organizations—Y.W.C.A. This year's Freshmen will be well trained to carry on the activities of Y in future years.

Freshman Commission is an organization on the hill which helps to carry on the functions of the Y.W.C.A. The members, the elected presidents of the individual Freshman Y.W.C.A. groups, form the axis for all the Y.W.C.A. projects carried on in the Freshman Class. The group has the responsibility of laying the groundwork for all these activities that go on throughout the year.

Of the numerous undertakings of this group, the Doll Show has been outstanding. The girls in each group made a doll and the Freshman Commission put on a Doll Show to select the three most attractive entries. This year's show was in the form of a skit. After the judges had picked the winners, the dolls were given to the Fredericksburg Welfare Department, who gave them to the underprivileged children.

Another project that the Freshman Commission directed was the Clothing Drive for Overseas Relief. A canvas was made of every room on campus and each girl was asked to contribute something to the cause.

Throughout all of its activities, the underlying purpose of the Freshman Commission is to stimulate a feeling of individual responsibility, loyalty, cooperation and Christian endeavor in the college.

Faith, friendship, and fun

As Westminster Fellowship began its third year on Mary Washington College campus, all its members were ready to set out full of fresh spirit for the new year. To begin the activities of the club there was a Communion breakfast early one Sunday morning for all who could brave the cold winds of fall. During the year there were many suppers, followed by spiritually inspiring meetings in which all members took an active part. Supplementing the supper meetings were parties on special occasions, picnics at quiet spots, and joint meetings with the clubs from other Virginia colleges held at the Presbyterian church in Fredericksburg. On these occasions the programs were planned to be full of variety and spiritual value and to provide an opportunity for fellowship with Presbyterian students from other schools.

The aim of the club was to win students to live a truly Christ-centered life and to help develop in them Christian character and a sense of religious leadership. Members were inspired to prayer, and at all meetings there was an atmosphere of Christian fellowship, encouragement, and willing service. Miss Helen Schultz was our faculty advisor, and Mr. Mayo Smith and Miss Lucy Pennell, our church advisors.

Thus we have continued throughout the past year, leaving in our wake many duties performed and treasured memories gained. We look onward and upward with God as our guide, striving to fulfill our purpose in our every day life.

Methodist Church at work on campus

The Wesley Foundation, an organization for members of the Methodist denomination, seeks to provide for the spiritual, moral, and social needs of students, and to strengthen its members in Christian living and ideals.

During the past year members of the Wesley Foundation participated in many conferences of Methodist college students throughout Virginia. There was a conference at Natural Bridge, and a Spiritual Life Retreat at Albemarle in September, at which George Harper, the secretary of the Methodist Youth Fellowship, conducted meetings.

Besides the regular officers, the chairmen of various committees make up a Council which convenes often to plan meetings and activities. At the meetings the Council presents various speakers and recreation programs.

Members of the Wesley Foundation gain inspiration and fellowship through such services as the candle-light worship service held in the church on Sunday nights, discussion programs, and the College Sunday School Class.

In addition to the meetings, members of the Wesley Foundation participate in many helpful and charitable activities. During the Christmas season the club went caroling throughout the town of Fredericksburg, and sent C.A.R.E. packages overseas. Members have also done much work at the Negro Youth Canteen in Fredericksburg, supervising organized games and projects of the children. The girls in the club also belong to an Inter-Racial Sewing Circle, where they do much work for the underprivileged families in Fredericksburg.

CANTERBURY CLUB

Christian fellowship

The Canterbury Club at Mary Washington College, an organization for Episcopal girls, holds its meetings each Sunday night throughout the year in the Parish House of Trinity Church. This group tries to help the Episcopal girls, and all others who are interested, to combine their spiritual lives with their everyday campus activities.

This work is done through three basic channels: worship, service, and Christian fellowship. The first is accomplished by encouraging the girls to attend church services regularly and by providing for them, here on the hill, the service of Holy Communion.

Service and Christian fellowship are closely related and the group feels that by working for and with others, this is most satisfactorily achieved.

NEWMAN CLUB

"Lead, kindly light"

Off to a Virginia Conference

The Newman Club is a national organization for Catholics attending secular colleges. Its purpose is to promote the religious, intellectual, and social growth of its members.

Among the Newman Club's activities of the year were a reception and initiation for new members, several conference trips, and a Christmas party given for members at Mary Washington by the Newman Club of the University of Virginia at Charlottesville. The annual communion breakfast was held in the spring on Mother's Day.

Speakers interested in Catholic youth action were often guests at the monthly meetings. On the third Sunday of every month members of the club participated in the Sacrament of Holy Eucharist in a body.

The little stone house just outside the gate of Chandler Circle was the scene of most of the year's activities of the Baptist Student Union. In October there was a party honoring the Freshmen. Each Saturday night throughout the year there were delightful socials at which members sang, roasted marshmallows, pulled taffy and played games.

From 6:45-7:00 every night devotionals are held at the Baptist Student Center. The members are inspired by Bible readings, prayer, song, and the fellowship of other members.

A large group of Mary Washington girls attended the state convention of Baptist Student Unions in Winchester, Virginia, where the group conferences and religious service of the day were followed by parties for all representatives.

One of the main activities of the year took place in March, when students from the University of Richmond worked with those from Mary Washington in a Youth Revival.

LUTHERAN STUDENT ASSOCIATION

Worshiping together

Sitting: Mrs. Broughton, Fittin. Standing: Weaver, Mrs. Bolick, Coldren

The Lutheran Student Association is an organization of which all Lutheran students on the campus may be members. Its purpose is to strengthen and sustain Christian students in their faith and to present an opportunity for Lutherans to cultivate friendship and social life on a Christian level.

The members are brought together in monthly meetings of a combined religious and business nature. In addition to these regular meetings, the girls find time to enjoy church suppers and picnics.

During the Christmas season, members of the Lutheran Student Association of Mary Washington College sent boxes of food and supplies to needy members of the Lutheran denomination in Europe. Holiday cheer and good will were also spread by Christmas caroling at the local hospital.

The Lutheran Student Association not only is active here on campus, but also sends representatives to state and district conferences.

CAMPUS CHEST

The 1947 Campus Chest drive was launched in early October when Fraulein Verena von Leiben of Vienna delivered a very informative and moving speech on the hardships faced by European students. Following the program Campus Chest Council gave a reception in honor of the speaker.

When the drive ended in October, the thermometer on the billboard in Chandler Circle for the first time in three years shot over its mark of $3,000. The drive was stimulated by the division of the college into two groups. The white team reached its goal first, with the blue team coming in not far behind. The losers honored the winners with an informal dance and floor show in Monroe gym.

Campus Chest is a combination of all drives on the hill excepting the Red Cross, and gives support to such organizations as the College Y.W.C.A., the Cancer Foundation, the Tuberculosis Association, the Infantile Paralysis Foundation, and the World Student Service Fund. By contributing to Campus Chest, students of Mary Washington are able to share with those less fortunate than they. Although cities all over the United States contribute to community chests, the colleges and universities alone support the World Student Fund.

The spirit of giving

The appearance of little brick fireplaces, inviting some kind "Santa's" gift of notebook and pencil, marked the year's first Red Cross project—a drive to give material aid to European students. There were three other major projects for the year: a safety campaign, a scrapbook collection for children in local hospitals, and the annual fund-raising campaign.

The Mary Washington College Unit of the American Red Cross is one of over two hundred such units organized on the campuses of colleges and universities throughout the country. These units provide students with an opportunity to participate in the local and national program of the American Red Cross. Each college unit has a board of ten or more members who make up the operating committee. The Mary Washington board is composed of twelve members representing each of the four classes.

The program followed each year is determined by student interest, community needs, and college approval. Among the programs which can be developed are blood donor service, community service to camps and hospitals, disaster relief, first aid, water safety, accident prevention, and home nursing.

ATHLETIC RECREATION ASSOCIATION

An interlude of play with A.R.A.

Barbara D'Armond, President

A.R.A. was on its toes from June through September providing entertainment and wholesome fun. The Association's fall calendar showed an open house for Freshmen at the cabin—cokes, popcorn and more popcorn! Although the tennis tournaments for upperclassmen and Freshmen failed to produce any Alice Marbles, the games revealed potentialities. At the same time the hockey fields were overrun with promising Freshmen. Early in November the grass was nearly trimmed for the state tournament for which A.R.A. was hostess to the Virginia Field Hockey Association. Even the rain didn't prevent several thrilling games between various girls' colleges. The cabin underwent a magical change and took on a stately air for the tea given in honor of the visiting teams.

As autumn leaves fell, so did pages from the recreation calendar—the square dance, Devil-

Leary, Shellhorse, Brauer, Sparks, McVeigh, Kucera, Woods, Webb

Goat hockey games, bridge and ping-pong tournaments, bingo nights, the fall horse show and hikes through autumnal twilights. The "Korny Karnival," A.R.A. benefit, was a Halloween feature with spooks and game concessions.

Basketball soon swept dormitories and the gym rang with yells of cheer leaders and enthusiastic supporters. The class tournament ended with the usual sprained fingers and ankles and the vicious Devil-Goat game. The winter brought also those weekends of games and dances in the gym, and chilling, smoky parties at the cabin after sledding down its hills.

The spring calendar opened with golf, softball games with student and faculty participants, tennis warm-ups, a spring horse show, and archery tournaments. Climaxing the year's events was Devil-Goat Day, when class distinctions were forgotten and the only allegiance was to the respective teams. To re-establish good will after this rivalry and to conclude the year, A.R.A. entertained its members with the annual banquet. The gaiety of this occasion was matched only by a solemn pride in the knowledge that once again A.R.A.

Wilson, Richmond, Jordan, Sharp, Miss Arnold

had fulfilled its purpose: "To promote wholesome and healthful activity, to stimulate an interest in athletics and recreation, to create a spirit of good sportsmanship and to cooperate with other campus organizations in maintaining the highest standards of college life."

OUTING CLUB

The Outing Club started the year by inviting its new members to join a hike in the wooded territory bounding the farther limits of Fredericksburg. Throughout the year the club's members hiked through the countryside and visited the historic shrines in Fredericksburg itself. A picnic was held in the fall and another in the spring. Members shared the pervading Yuletide spirit by having a cabin party soon after the Christmas holidays.

The greater part of the Outing Club's time was spent in tramping the nearby woods and sharing the nature observations made by Dr. Pyle, the club's sponsor. During the year, the many walks along the Rappahannock and through the woods provided a welcome interlude in the routine of studying.

TERRAPIN CLUB

Highlighting the year for Terrapin Club was its annual Aquacade, a colorful affair which well rewarded the members for their diligent practice. While Miss Leonard, club sponsor, pleaded, scolded, and praised from the sidelines, the swimmers demonstrated commendable club and school spirit in their long hours of perfecting strokes and dives for the National Telegraphic Meet, at which Mary Washington College made an excellent showing.

Although membership in Terrapin is on a competitive basis in swimming and diving, it is not only the potential Olympic champions who have benefited from the club's activities. The daily recreational swimming periods sponsored by Terrapin have provided the entire student body with considerable enjoyment, and have encouraged the improvement of aquatic skills.

HOOFPRINTS CLUB

Reins in her fingers, boots on her toes

Matthews, Shellhorse, Conn, Mr. Walther, Bartholomew

How could they forget? Hoofprinters will never lose the store of lasting memories of their riding days at Mary Washington. Oak Hill Stables provided these girls with an opportunity to meet for thrilling fox hunts, invigorating trail rides, and campfire suppers with gallons of hot coffee and mountains of oysters.

The Hoofprints Club was formed to arouse a greater interest in horses, as well as to stimulate in all Mary Washington girls an enthusiasm for the sport. That they have succeeded can be affirmed by the large number of spectators who flocked to the stables to take part in the stirring excitement of the shows. These were the highlights of the year; the riders will never forget the anticipation with which they prepared for the thrilling events. This year the open show, a new addition to the club's functions, was presented in the fall. It gave the members an opportunity to ride against top competition, as well as to learn the details of managing such a show. During the year the club also sponsored a Gymkhana and a 'Possum Hunt, and participated in Hunter Trials.

With the coming of spring, the jocks began diligently to practice hacking and jumping, in anticipation of the greatest equestrian event of the year, the Spring Horse Show. This show was not only the most important activity of the Hoofprints Club, but also one of the biggest events of the year for Mary Washington College. On the big day the riders were up at dawn braiding manes and tails, and trying to coax prancing horses to behave. Outwardly poised and composed, the smartly attired girls were secretly relieved when the show finally started and the suspense ended. The classes began and were judged by some of the outstanding horsemen of the surrounding area. Winners of the different classes were rewarded by ribbons, and the rider who had given the best performance of the day was presented with a cup. With this final demonstration of horsemanship, the work and fun of the Hoofprints Club was brought to a close.

Phillips, Mr. Walther, Bartholomew, Bailey

CAVALRY TROOP

"Boots—boots—boots—boots movin' up an' down again!"

Thursday night in the big gym we still occasionally heard the tramp of marching feet, although the newly-reorganized cavalry put less stress on military techniques. Retaining its old name and its military officers, the new cavalry has expanded to admit all girls who are interested in horses.

As before, Cavalry is sponsored by Hoof-prints Club, but its present emphasis is upon promoting good sportsmanship, and furthering interest in riding. The programs for the weekly meetings this year consisted of lectures and movies pertinent to the activities of the club. Films were shown on the techniques of good horsemanship and of past shows at Oak Hill Stables.

Still a utilitarian group, Cavalry rendered service on various special occasions, and each member took an active part in every horse show as "the girl behind the girl upon the horse." They sold tickets, ran errands for the judges, and set up rails for the unfortunates who didn't clear the jumps.

Cavalry's year has been filled with fun. There was the chuck-wagon supper after the fall Horse Show; the overnight hikes from which the girls returned bruised, cold, and hungry, but in gay spirits; the 'possum hunt; and the scavenger hunt which sent the girls into graveyards, historical shrines, and various other inaccessible places. But the occasions which will be longest remembered were the campfires in the early twilight, where the songs of the girls mingled with the stamping of the horses in the stables and the other sounds of the night.
